Latest Poll Results

Will our PL First Grade be relegated next season?

- a) Yup, they sure will – 20%
- b) Good Lord, no – 26%
- c) Division 1 have a better chance of being minor premiers than PL do of staying up – 40%
- d) Isn't it a bit early to be asking these questions – 14%

Obviously, c) was a trick answer, which goes to show that 40% of participants must be University students.

In truth, with our PL side registering it's first win of the season, it is obvious they will soon reel in the less-favoured Tuggers. What happens once they leave the bottom, only time will tell. Will they continue to ascend the giddy heights of the PL table? Will they ensconce themselves into a cosy spot somewhere in mid-table? Will they become the new Premiers? Is that even mathematically possible? Where are those University students when you need them?

Editor's Note: That's 4:45 in the morning – Monday morning. Perfectly civilised time of day to be awake and enjoying a continental breakfast, when one thinks about it. The S.C.U.M. predicts a final between the Salacious Spaniards and the Lamborghini-Cop-Car Italians. It should be a thrilling match between a couple of football juggernauts.

With two of the strongest domestic leagues in the world, Spain and Italy find themselves well-placed in the competition to sweep aside the other nations. Expect sparks to fly as the much-vaunted Spanish attack comes up against the ever-reliable, unflinching Italian defence.

We at the S.C.U.M. are salivating at the mere thought of the match-up: a real corker of a game where the only possible winner will be football.

Coaches' Q&A: The Responses The Press Were Too Scared To Print

Darren Viskovich (Premier League Reserves)

Q: If you had 24 hours to live, what would you do, and would it involve trying to win a game?

A: If I had 24 hours to live I think I would try and make the most of the short time available. In that time I would try and do everything I love doing. Priorities to me would be to spend quality time with my family and friends. Before my 24 hours was up I would request a few things:

- 1) The chance to drive a V8 Supercar around Mount Panorama
- 2) Watch the replay of my best soccer highlights
- 3) Have dinner with Julia Roberts
- 4) Anything else would be a blessing.

Q: In your words, compare and contrast your pre-season expectations, mid-mid-season perceptions and mid-season analysis.

A: This season has been one of the most interesting of my soccer career both as a coach and player. When training first started back in late January I was a bit unsure as to how my fortunes would go as so many of last years players moved on. Some retired, some left Canberra, some now play in the lower grades and one even became a ref. With this mass exodus I was concerned things would be difficult for the reserves.

However much to my relief the influx of a number of new younger players has been a blessing from heaven. This year the reserves have a large number of younger players which is really encouraging for the clubs future. Hopefully after a year together the bulk of this young group can make the transition to first grade next season.

At the beginning of the year my personal goal was to work and develop these younger players and to be successful as possible. I thought the semi finals were a realistic target for the team.

The pre season was not overly encouraging for us and we played five trial games against varied opposition. We won three and lost two.

Once the season proper came around all the lads lifted a gear and they have all been a real credit to themselves and the club. They have worked very hard at their game and continue to play with a real fighting spirit that is very pleasing to see. At the end of round one the team has worked hard and played well and deserves its high position on the table.

Round two and the run home will be hard but hopefully with continual hard work and good determined team work we will continue to play well and get results.

Q: Do you think any of your responses will change come November?

A: Only time will tell. I always try and focus on the here and now. As a coach all I can do is work my players at training and motivate them before the game. When game time arrives you have to let them play the game as you cant play it for them. I am very pleased with the season thus far and it all comes down to the hard work and dedication shown by the players for this good start to the season. Lets hope they keep it going.

Paimon Bashiri (Division 5)

Q: If you had 24 hours to live, what would you do, and would it involve trying to win a game?

If I had 24 hours to live, I probably would go back to Afghanistan and visit my hometown of Herat. Then if I make it alive out of there, I would come back to Australia and dine out at the best restaurant in Perth or somewhere and I would probably hire 3 or 4 very good looking chicks for a night of fun (I hope my girlfriend won't be reading this. Women, they don't understand.) Would It involve trying to win a game? maybe, if I had a couple of hours left, I'd love to win against Monaro, where do they get ego to be in the division 5?

Q: In your words, compare and contrast your pre-season expectations, mid-mid-season perceptions and mid-season analysis.

Given the limited preparation and my late appointment as coach of SL5, I think we have exceeded expectations thus far. Initially, my goal was to field a competitive side in Division 5 and finish up mid table. So far, we have achieved that and have had some very good wins as well as some disappointing results. However, our objective as I'm sure with many other teams, is to finish in the top 4. Whether this will happen rests upon the players' attitudes and their desire to win and get the 3 points week in week out. I'm confident that with a lot of consistent determination and communication on the field coupled with our counter attacking football which has thus far been our biggest asset, we can have a successful season.

Q: Do you think any of your responses will change come November?

Anything can happen between now and November so whatever happens I'll be proud of what we have achieved so far.

Pete Foley (Grand Old Masters)

Q: If you had 24 hours to live, what would you do, and would it involve trying to win a game?

What sort of game? If soccer, I can't see myself exhorting the team "to win one for the gipper" ala Regan. I can think of lots of other games I would rather play if fit with 24 hours to live but these are no longer allowed to be published in our esteemed SCUM.

Q: In your words, compare and contrast your pre-season expectations, mid-mid-season perceptions and mid-season analysis.

Pre-season I expected Masters to make the semi-finals but with the growth of the competition and a few new players thought we would scrape in.

Mid-season I am somewhat surprised by

- a) the demise of traditional foes Belconnen (but they could prove a nuisance if they can field a team)
- b) how well we are playing as a team
  - defence is solid
  - goals are coming from midfield and from crosses!!
  - players are running into space even if they are not getting the ball
  - players are talking more and whingeing less

I am now hopeful of a premiership.

Q: Do you think any of your responses will change come November?

Come November I will be pondering the fortunes of the cricket club not the soccer club.

Rob Bennet (Division – toey humans ready to spurt sauce – 2)

Q: If you had 24 hours to live, what would you do, and would it involve trying to win a game?

It wouldn't involve trying to win a game of soccer....

Having said that, one highly pleasurable soccer-related experience that I would consider doing in those last valuable hours would be to ring Wisey and tell him he was starting on the bench for the next game....

Q: In your words, compare and contrast your pre-season expectations, mid-mid-season perceptions and mid-season analysis.

Pre-season expectations = Not high. We'll struggle. Ageing and Raging Bull will blue with themselves, each other, the rest of our team, the opposition, the ref, the door into the change room....

Mid-season reality = Done alright. Better than expected. Ageing and the Bull have blued with themselves, each other, the rest of our team, the opposition, the ref, the door into the change room....

Highlights - Slick Dick's goal, the fight backs against Belconnen and City Suns, Alex Engel's goalkeeping performance, Gordo's SCUM spin on Apocalypse Now, Ageing accepting the seven figure contract to play with our team this season and knowing that Channers' best is still to come.

Q: Do you think any of your responses will change come November?

The bottom line is a lot of water can flow under the bridge between now and then. We'll just take it one week at a time. But a week is a long time in football. And it's a funny old game. We've just got to put last weeks game behind us because we can't do anything about that result now. We've just got to focus on next weeks game. We've got a team full of kids. A lot of our players are long term propositions but I can guarantee they will always have a red hot go. We've just got to keep our heads down and do the work. We've just got to keep battling away. The results will come. Ultimately, football will be the winner.

ANU PL Reserves draw with Tuggeranong By Coach-Man

ANU PL Reserves drew 1-1 away to Tuggeranong on Saturday on a very cold day at Woden. The game was a very hard one and was played at a quick pace from the start with both sides giving everything they had.

From the first minute Tuggeranong came out strong and for the first 15 minutes we were camped in our own half running into a strong headwind. In this opening onslaught Tuggeranong put us under the hammer and created some chances that Graeme saved well. Our defence was having to work overtime to keep the Tuggers at bay. The whole team stood firm and we managed to claw our way back and begin to get some ascendancy.

Once we were able to put our foot on the ball we looked much more comfortable and began to cause Tuggeranong problems. Through some good play we made a few chances that narrowly missed. We took the lead on the 25 minute mark thanks to a great goal by Brin. Simon Lloyd played a great ball through the Tuggeranong defence and Brin used his pace to run behind the defenders and then with a clinical finish he netted to give us a lead.

After the goal Tuggeranong fought back and with some sustained pressure equalised just before half time. A well hit shot from close distance gave Graeme no chance.

1-1 at half time was a fair result and after the break both sides looked for the winner. I think it is fair to say that both sides had chances to win the game in the second half but some good keeping and strong defending ensured the scores stayed level. As the game wore on we looked to be getting stronger and had a few good chances late in the game that narrowly missed.

At full time I was happy to get a point from this tough encounter. The game was played at a quick pace with both sides currently first and second on the table going at it like two heavyweight boxers throwing punches.

From a coaching perspective I was pleased that the team was able to show a lot of grit and resolve and keep the marauding Tuggers at bay. Also I was pleased that we were able to play some good football against a strong defensive unit like Tuggeranong. Next week we have another tough game with local rivals the O'Connor Knights.

Well done lads.

Division 6 ANUFC Pelicans 3 – Lanyon Utd 1 By Dale Jackson

Lanyon Utd were the only other Div 6 team that the ANUFC Pelicans hadn't yet faced in season 2004. This was evident in their smug approach to the game, all other sides had had such confidence knocked out of them by the Pelicans in previous weeks. Before the game the skies were threatening (to snow), and the cold and windy conditions were to make the task of winning more of a challenge.

Lanyon talked a lot of shit, but proved impotent in attack (I'm sure there's supposed to be a Benny Nicholls reference here somewhere). Despite having played precious little football this season, our markers, Marcus and Jason, kept a tight ship. Their task was made difficult by the wind and having to put up with the theatrical bullshit of Lanyon striker, Franky. Meanwhile, Pitto's sweeping was, as usual, immaculate. Our stand-in keeper, Dave, was for the most part untroubled, but did pull off one outstanding save in the first half. Warren and Glen held the upper hand in the midfield, while the forwards and wings were a constant threat on the Lanyon goal. Unfortunately, the Lanyon goalkeeper turned out to be one of the most impressive in the competition, making numerous fine saves (how am I supposed to get on the scoresheet when the keepers actually know what they are doing?).

Regardless of this, the scoring was opened with a sublime left-foot finish by Glen from Srema's delicate through ball. 1-0 up at half-time was pleasing, knowing that we'd have the wind behind us in the second half. ANUFC went 2-0 up when Adam maintained his tradition of scoring in the minute after coming off the bench. This was another coaching masterstroke from Turps, the best move he could have made was to replace himself (I mean, ... oops, ..., aw shit, ... I hope I get a run next week).

Despite having the luxury of three men in black and grey instead of none, the standard of officiating left plenty to be desired. Whilst his enthusiasm for football was admirable, another extravagant dive from our friend Franky was rewarded with a very dubious penalty, which was converted. The score was now 2-1 and I feared that Lanyon might pull an unjust draw out of their arse. Shortly after, Benny went down somewhere near the penalty box with minimal contact, and after consulting the full bench of the High Court the ref squared things up a bit by awarding another spot kick. Benny strode confidently to the spot, only to be frustrated by another great save. However, the game was sealed soon after when a Lanyon defender used his hand to deflect the ball into his own net, champagne football.

The win was satisfying and well worth celebrating at no lesser establishment than the Calwell Tavern, a unique ACTAB/bar/childcare facility in the heart of Lanyon territory. The Pelicans are now undefeated after playing every team in the competition, with only an unlucky draw against Belwest stopping us from taking maximum points. The challenge now is to maintain the momentum and continue to improve as we move into the business end of the season.

Division 2
Capital City Suns 2:3 ANU Smart Tools
By Galloping Gordo

Finally, a place where the only thing that's cold is the beer. Somewhere where I can be quietly reunited with my long, lost friend Mr Body Heat. Dark ale, white-hot chips and the urgent buzz of post-match banter. Wool jumpers and raw shins. Three goals, three points and smug smiles all round. Never in doubt.

Can't believe Ageing is telling me to take my time. With about a minute to play, this free deep in their defensive third will be our last roll of the dice. Almost everyone's into the mixer for Wisey's cross. They're telling themselves its going to the near post and predicably it does. Ageing's leading, diving, scoring. The whistle's sounding.

They're rampant. It's like an eleven-man ram raid: smashing, grabbing, running. They're cocky, strutting, swaggering. Plenty of lip; they can't say enough. All smart asides and unbridled sarcasm. But the ball is through to Dick on the left and he's smashing it with his own special brand of savagery. And it's all net baby. Two apiece.

The game's up for grabs but only one team wants it. And it's not us. Challenges are half-hearted, passes lack conviction. Rob's screaming for some commitment. Ageing's just screaming. Team talk has all the charm of an industrial accident. They're into our box and we're not backing up. Engel doesn't stand a chance and we're down two to one.

The sheds are cold and dank but at least there's no wind. Rob's encouraged, plenty to work with. Apparently it's all about composure, hard work off the ball and a bit of controlled menace. One all and a fresh start in the second half. Wisey's scowling, Channing's smiling and Jerry wants to know who we're playing. Situation normal.

All of a sudden it's clicking. Passes are connecting, corridors are opening. Touches are delicate, runs decisive. Pete's cutting a swath down the left flank. Measured, deliberate, inexorable. The ball's delivered and Wisey's there to slot it. Scores are level, the Suns deflated and Wisey's taking the time to let everyone know that he's on the card.

Engel is playing out of his skin. Shots are casually palmed away, crosses nonchalantly punched from our box and opposition runs intercepted with devastating effect. Pressure builds as ANU players chew each other out. Wisey's swearing but the ref isn't hearing. We're flat-footed, the opposition hungry. Jerry's dusted one on one and we're behind.

Keeper AWOL, Molloy injured and Charles' ankle gentle flaps in the breeze. James calls to say he's arrived safely at Hawker with the strip. Pity our game's at Hackett. James calls to say his car has broken down somewhere between Hawker and Hackett. Rob to the rescue. Shirts are still wet when we slip them on. We haven't a hope.

The Hackett field is flat but liberally strewn with roo manure. A giant green cake smothered with pungent brown hundreds and thousands. The wind cuts through everything. Assailing senses and numbing minds. Only Engel is here and he's wearing a Gunners' top. Two roos snicker at us from the adjacent pitch.

Premier League
ANU "demolisher's on a roll" (4) def Tuggeranong "tuggers" (2)
By Jeremy Haling

As ANU premier league made the journey across the lake to the valley under the backdrop of snow capped Brindabella's, the blood was stirring as we vividly recalled previous visits with unhappy endings. But today was going to be different, not just because we had a new look strip or a few new faces, but mostly because Rod had opted to forgo wearing his "lucky" underdaks and socks he'd been wearing all year.

As they ref arrived with the Tugger's manager ANU filed into the change rooms for the pre game warm up. Thankfully we had a power point so we could plug in the heater we'd packed. After a few team bonding exercises we were ready to go out and check if the ground was right for screw in's or if it had sufficient drainage to warrant the moulded boot options. With this out of the way, and with about 80% of the team going for moulded we were ready to hit the field.

As we went through our paces with a new verve only saved for special days like this the temperature warmed and we shed our excess layers. The joints loosened and we were ready to demolish the opposition.

The tuggers' bench in their fancy tracksuits lounged around and the crowd began to look restless yet intrigued as they felt the aura of the ANU warm up and compared it to the overly relaxed atmosphere surrounding the tuggers players.

The ref blew the whistle and the game was on. The first few minutes the game was in the balance before ANU began to dominate. Solid periods of possession left the hapless tuggers languishing around the paddock as they searched for answers. It was not long before ANU put some good moves together to create opportunities. The first goal started from a poor back pass/shot from the tuggers forward easily picked up by Ely the keeper who in the same movement threw the ball to Delves' feet on the right. With time to spare Delves' nipped the defender then regathered to pass crisply to Mizza, who ran around the unfortunate tuggers left back not once but twice, then laid the ball firmly off to Gianni in the middle. Gianni, with enough time for a cup of tea drew the midfield opposition in before opting for a 1:2 off Wazza who flattened his opposite number in the move. G then picked out Pano on a diagonal run up front and put a deft ball at his feet cutting out at least 10 defenders. Pano sized up the options while beating the remaining defenders before picking out Scott on a run closer to the goal. Scott licked his lips as the ball came to his feet and wasted not time slotting the ball past the dithering tuggers' keeper. 1:0 ANU.

ANU maintained the solid tempo but the tuggers' ref pulled up a basic tackle for a foul by Hobsy on the right as he dispossessed the tuggers midfielder and really only had the keeper to beat on his way to a second ANU goal. The tuggers free kick was picked up by the strong wind and all but forced into the goal as the score ticked to 1:1 and the ref picked up his first bonus.

ANU however did not miss a beat and from another good move started by Ely at the back he threw to Steve in space who passed it on to Dezza, onto Delves, back into Wazza, across to Jez, back to Hobsy, in to Gianni, up to Mizza, across to Scott, and to Pano who won a left side corner. The corner whipped in by Gianni was heading straight for an ANU head and the tuggers keeper had no option but to punch it out. The punch was poor and the shot came back into to the washing machine where ANU pounced on the ball and Mizza drove it home. 2:1 ANU.

At this stage it was all ANU. It was not long though before a spec' long ball from the tuggers backline under pressure was again picked up by the wind and landed in the ANU goal. 2:2.

ANU kept up the pressure and exploited the tuggers backline which was as flat as the Nullaboob. Tuggers were not looking forward to the second half without the wind and tried to take advantage of the remaining minutes of the half but could do nothing with the solid ANU back performance and Ely quick to come off his line for any half chance.

Half time score 2:2. Tuggers get ref into change rooms for half time talk. ANU refocuses and discusses further ways to make tuggers look ordinary and score a few more goals.

The second half saw ANU with the wind at their backs and tuggers with their backs to the wall. An explosive start for ANU piled on the pressure and tuggers crumbled. Wazza fed the ball to Scott who received the ball in space about 15 yards out on the left, after picking out his target Scott cracked the ball sweetly. A tuggers defender saw the ball coming and tried to duck but unfortunately for him he was too slow causing a deflection and ANU's 3rd. With the shot bound to hit the net without a deflection the tuggers keeper was happy to blame the deflection for wrong footing him. ANU 3:2.

With ANU in the lead tuggers were looking down the barrel of defeat which they hadn't even considered for this game. The tuggers' manager was screaming at the ref who didn't have his hearing aids in, so he didn't actually realise.

ANU continued with a solid performance from all which thwarted any possibility of another tuggers goal. With the game opening up in the final stages the middle of the park was dominated by ANU. Gianni was hacked down as he toyed with the tuggers midfielders who had no hope in hell of getting the ball. With many attacking opportunities the tuggers defence was on a knife edge and a handling error just outside the box gave ANU time to set up for a direct free kick. Derryn and Scott stood on the ball and conceived a plan sure to break through the tightest of defences. With a dummy run over the ball Scott drew the attention of the wall and the keeper while Derryn cool as can be slotted a left footer over the wall into the top right corner just beneath the cross bar without giving the keeper a chance. ANU 4:2.

With tuggers running out of options from the bench, Rod decided to make some inspired subs for those who had given their all through the game. Al the tiler came on and tore the defence to shreds right from go and put ANU into scoring positions like the flick of a switch as well as putting his body on the line in defence. Charters came on to make his debut in premier league with a stint at an unfamiliar right back which he made look like his own and every time he got the ball threatened to score. Bryn also made a good impact in the latter stages with penetrating runs through the miserable tuggers defence.

In the dying minutes ANU toyed with the tuggers players giving them no ball and therefore as we all know, not much chance to score. Pano skinned numerous players inside the tuggers penalty area as they desperately dove for the ball before crossing to Mizza who allowed too much for the wind and had to force himself not to handball a goal for ANU in the last moments of a memorable match.

As the sun went down over the trees of the valley paddock the ANU song could be heard throughout the city as the ref argued with the tuggers manager that he still had to be paid his regular match fee. ANU partied well into the night happy that Rod might now get a good nights sleep and wear fresh socks every week, but more so that they had finally clenched a valuable 3 points.

The Coe Connection (JAFFAS 3 v ADFA BLUE 2)

The game kicked off and within 10 minutes things turned sour. Tristan absent-mindedly urged the team on in colourful language "Let's get some f*cken quality on these balls!" only to have the ref, standing mere metres away, whistle and send him for an early shower.

However traditionally the Jaffas have made a habit of playing with less men than their opposition, and give their best performances in the process. This match continued that noble tradition.

With no subs, the half finished 1-0 to ADFA, a free kick swung wildly in caused some confusion in the box. Nigel in goals ably punched the initial attempt only for it to fall invitingly to an ADFA player who poked past several defenders on the line.

The second half was a more open affair, fresh players who took the field knew what they were in for and looked much more comfortable. The equaliser was a brilliant moment from Jim Coe. With images of Zidane's majestic free kick against England fresh in his mind, he had no trouble replicated the effort, with the ball arching first onto the left post and rebounding in.

Sash managed to last a whole game, and while his overall play was good as anyone else's, he distinguished himself by 2 clear headed misses in front of goal.

However, ADFA replied quickly to retake their lead. The game continued to be a cagey affair, but the Jaffas slowly retook their share of possession and the Coe connection again provided the next equaliser, a header at close range from Phil after neat passing.

With 5 minutes to go the Jaffas were in the ascendancy, and the family affair completed the comeback, as poor defending allowed the Jaffas to provide the ball into the box with the goal keeper absent, and Phil to slot home for a second and relieve Tristan's guilt.

Another memorable result, made more difficult on our part, but more cherished for the hardship.

Division 5 ANU 3 : 3 Tuggeranong United

We should have won, and done it in style, but we were too slow to start and we gave them too much room to move ... they didn't deserve the draw ...in saying that .. Maybe we didn't deserve the win!! ..

It was a miserable day, whether wise, and the pitch was something out of this world .. in fact I managed to get me Camera out and take a snap!! ..

I have no concept of the timings of when the goals were scored, but basically they scored pretty early on, an easy goal, just happened to end up in the top left hand corner of our goal ... We held them off for a while after that, and we managed to score two quick goals to go in at half time with the advantage ...

Second half, we came out on the attack, and we spent most of the time in their half, however at crucial moments, we just gave them too much room to move just outside the 18 yrd box, and to their merit they took advantage of that and equalised, leaving the score at 2:2 ... we lifted again and took it to 3:2 before falling asleep and giving them a gift shortly before fulltime.. It ended up with at 3:3 draw.

The dude with “the big arse” ... made the difference I think!!! Hollys%#t did you see the size of ... must be the equine stuff people inject these days ...
